

BMO CAPITAL MARKETS 2008 FOCUS ON HEALTHCARE CONFERENCE

Melinda Beeuwkes Bunti

Health Economist

Melinda Beeuwkes Buntin is a health economist and a member of Senator Obama's health policy committee. She received her Ph.D. in Health Policy with a concentration in economics from Harvard University. Dr. Buntin's research has focused on markets for health insurance and on provider payment strategies. Her current projects include studies of the impact of high-deductible health plans, the determinants of increases in Medicare payments for physicians' services, and the cost and outcomes of post-acute care for older patients. She has received research funding from numerous private foundations, federal agencies, and the National Institutes of Health. Dr. Buntin has been interviewed about her work for national media outlets including NPR and the New York Times. Today she is speaking as a private citizen and campaign volunteer: her current employer, a nonpartisan research organization, does not endorse any candidate.