Structured securities, options, futures and other derivatives are complex instruments, may involve a high degree of risk, and may be appropriate investments only for sophisticated investors who are capable of understanding and assuming the risks involved. Because of the importance of tax considerations to many option transactions, any investor considering options should consult with his/her tax advisor as to how taxes affect the outcome of contemplated option transactions. For further information on the risks involved with various option strategies, please consult the Options Clearing Corporations Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options. The document can be viewed at: <http://www.optionsclearing.com/about/publications/character-risks.jsp>.
